

KEEPING THE STREETS TORN UP.

Guys—Understand that Frightened Horses and Mischiefs that Scare Timid Folk.

The American Heating and Power Company has seven miles of steam pipe laid through the city. Each section of pipe is heated up to 500 pounds hydraulic pressure before being used, and when laid is tested with 100 pounds steam pressure. Despite these precautions, the pipes and joints give way at faulty points even when the pressure is low. The officers of the company say this has not happened often than they expected, as defective castings and imperfect joining cannot always be entirely guarded against. In several instances the pipes have burst and joints and elbows have given way from these causes. A few days ago a leak was discovered on Broadway between Madison and Cedar streets, and the street was dug up in order to find it. But the work was progressing on Thursday afternoon when a large volume of steam escaped from Broadway and Maiden lane. A dense volume of steam poured from the manhole at that point, and caused such a quantity of lamp-black smoke, which it almost covered Broadway. The manhole cover was replaced, as the steam continued to pour out in such volumes.

When steam was turned on yesterday morning there was another burst at the same place, which frightened horses and alarmed passers-by. The company says that was due to an accident, and this caused the steam to remain in large masses in the street. Steam continued to issue from the manhole, and the cause of the break was not found. The street will be dug up to-day in search of it.

There was another escape of steam during the day, and the company says that the pipe is now safe. The pipe was laid on John street, just off Broadway. An elbow at the bottom of a stop-valve shaft gave way, and allowed the steam to escape into the street, and created a slight panic among horses and pedestrians. This will also necessitate the re-opening of the street.

The Order of Lafayette.

ALBANY, Nov. 10.—The Order of Lafayette of the United States of America, with its principal office in New York city, was incorporated to-day. The objects of the order are to foster and stimulate love of country and patriotism; to promote the study of history and encourage devotion to the public service; to reward military prowess and civic virtue; to recognize the services of men who have distinguished themselves in war or peace; who were, or still are, prominent, themselves, and government and soldiers who have or may serve under the American flag; and their wives and orphans and to collect and general history information.

Gulfian's Other Would-be Assassin.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—One of the Underworld assassins, Bill Jones, who charged with attempting to kill Gulfian by shooting at him through the window of the prison van while he was being taken from the Court House to the jail, was called in the Criminal Court to-day. Jones was not present. His lawyer told the court that Jones lived in the country some distance from the city, and he had been unable to serve the process upon him. The case was therefore continued until next week.
